

NOTES TO THE READER.

I. The Astronomical calculations in this work, are made to true clock time, the same as in the United States Almanae, the North American Almanae, and other Standard works. The effects of Refraction, according to the latest improved Tables of Bessel, and the Equation of time have both been applied to the times of the Sun's rising and setting: so that the Sun, the Almanae, and a good Clock, will agree the year round.

II. A Time Piece may be set very nearly true by the rising, setting, or southing of the Sun, Moon or Stars,—but more accurately by the Sun, (or the southing of the Sun, or a fixed Star) anywhere on or near the 40th degree of north latitude.

III. The time of the rising, setting, or southing of a fixed Star, may be carried several days forward by subtracting, or backward by adding 4 minutes per day.

IV. The common day of 24 hours, begins at midnight, and morning (marked morn.) continues from midnight till noon; and afternoon (marked aft.) continues from noon till midnight; this should be remembered carefully when looking for the times of the rising, setting or southing of the Moon or Stars soon after midnight.

In the year 1851, there will be two Eclipses of the Sun, and two of the Moon.

1. There will be a partial Eclipse of the Moon on the 17th of First Month, at 11h. 49m. A. M.; consequently invisible to us.

H. An Eelipse of the Sun will occur on the 31st of First Month, at Midnight, consequently invisible on the Western Continent. This Eclipse will be Annular in the Southern part of Africa, and in the Indian Ocean near the Antarctic Continent.

III. A partial Eclipse of the Moon will occur on the Morning of the 13th of Seventh Month; visible as follows:

GRATITUDE.

Every principle which is produetive of good, ought to be esteemed and observed by men, for by the trial of means, a consequence is effected and diseovered. Some men from a sense of honour, act in a manner, which seeures them the applause of the world. Others in observance of duty perform great and lustrous deeds. Pride seeures others fame; but no quality of nature is higher, or is more eapable to produce an effect on the hearts of good men, than gratitude.

Being strongly connected with honour, it is found only in the noblest minds, or in those prone to emulate great examples, and virtuous accomplishments. Without it men would be unmindful of continued blessings, and would be wholly engrossed in selfish and abortive spéculations. It is a link connecting the chain of virtue; it holds man bound to man-it conducts him back to the bosom of his Creator. The couch of suffering is made easy by its voice, and even death is divested of 2 its terrors, by its influence.—

A SONG OF PRAISE.

BY THOMAS STORY. Copied from his Journal.

I was silent before the Lord, as a child not yet weaned; he put words in my mouth, and I sang forth his praise with an audible voice.

I called unto my God out of the great deep; he put on bowels of merey, and had compassion on me, because his love was infinite, and his power without measure.

He ealled for my life, and I offered it at his footstool; but he gave it me as a prey, with unspeakable addition.

He ealled for my will, and I 50 resigned it at his eall, but he re-32 turned me his own, in token of 5 10 17 his love.

He called for the world, and 3 9 40 11 52 I laid it at his feet, with the 15 10 34 12 46 crown thereof; I withheld them 0 11 30 1 42 not at the beekoning of his hand. 29 5 0 sets. aft. 29 2 29

But mark the benefits of ex-30²⁷ 1 8 59 1 29 3 17 change! for he gave me, instead of earth, a kingdom of eternal peace, and in lieu of the erown of vanity, a crown of glory.

DIGNITY OF LABOR.

In early life, David kept his father's sheep; his was a life of industry; and though foolish men think it degrading to perform any useful labor, yet in the eyes of wise men, industry is truly honorable, and the most useful man is the happiest. A life of labor is man's natural condition and most favorable to mental health and bodily vigor. Bishop Hall says, "Sweet is the destiny of all trades, whether of the brow or of the mind. God never allowed any man to do nothing." From the ranks of industry, have the world's greatest been taken. Rome was more than once saved by a man who was sent for from the plough. 1 Moses had been keeping sheep for forty years before he came forth as the deliverer of Israel. The Apostles were chosen from amongst the hardy and laborious fishermen. From whence I infer that, when God has any great work to perform, he selects as 53 his instruments those who, by tressed tenants. Most of his donations were enclosed in blank covers, bearing the modest signature of 'A Friend.' A lady once applied to him in behalf of an orphan, saying, 'When he is old enough, I will teach him to name and thank his benefactor.' 'Nay,' replied the good man, thou art wrong. We do not thank the clouds for rain. Teach him to look higher and to thank Him who giveth both the clouds and the rain. My talent is the meanest of all talents-a little sordid dust; but as the man in the parable was accountable for his one talent, so am I accountable to the great Lord of all.'

The fountain of content must spring up in the mind; and he who has so little knowledge of human nature, as to seek happiness by changing anything but his own disposition, will waste his life in fruitless efforts, and multiply the griefs which he purposes to remove.

The following anagram on the well known biographer, William Oldys, may claim a place among the first productions of this class. It was by Oldys himself, and was found by his executors in one of his MSS.:

"In word and WILL I AM a friend to you,
And one friend OLD IS worth a hundred new."

Children are travellers newly arrived in a strange country, we should therefore make conscience not to mislead them. Locke.

INTERNAL EVIDENCE.

A man of subtle reasoning ask'd A peasant, if he knew, Where was the internal evidence That proved his Bible true?

The terms of disputative art
Had never reach'd his ear—
He laid his hand upon his heart
And only answered, "HERE."

Oh blest with temper, whose unclouded ray Can make to-morrow cheerful as to-day: She who ne'er answers till a husband cools, Or if she rules him, never shows she rules: Charms by accepting, by submitting sways, Yet has her humour most when she obeys.

He that hath a satirical vein, as he maketh others afraid of wit, so he had need be afraid of others' memory. Bacon.

NOVEL READING.

BY G. A. BROWNSON.

It is never good to exeite the mind or heart over much, save when it can find immediate rest in actions which concern real life. A confirmed novel reader is always morbid; on some sides preternaturally sensitive, on others preternaturally callous; -- capable it may be, of talking much fine sentiment, but wanting in that spiritual strength, in that moral robustness which is equal to the performance of a useful but difficult part in real life. The less fine sentiment we have on our lips, the more genuine feeling shall we have in our hearts; and the more noble and generous action shall we perform. He who stops to sentimentalize about poverty, will be the last to throw his cloak over the tattered gabardine of the beggar. is no doubt all very antiquated, and altogether old fashioned.

But we hope our young friends, seated on rich ottomans, or reelining on easy couches, with the last new novel still moist from the press, will forgive this, our antediluvianism. It is with no vinegar visage, nor eant, that we tell them to throw the novel aside, to rouse themselves from their indolence, and go forth and devote the sensibilities of their hearts, the richness of their faneies, and the creativeness of their imaginations, to the great and noble work of relieving actual distress, and upbuilding the eause of truth and righteousness on earth.—Oh! my young friends, there is not such an overplus of generous sentiment, of warm and noble feeling, in this cold wintry world of ours that you have any to waste over a Paul Clifford or a Jack Shepherd. No-go forth into real life, and let your sensibilities flow out for the actual poor and wretched; let the tear, so lovely in the eye of beauty, start at no fietitious wo. poor mother by hor dying boy in that miscrable hovel, needs it; those poor children, ragged, enerusted in filth, growing up to fill your penitentiaries, need it; the wrongs and outaages man is everywhere inflicting on man should eall it forth. Throw away the last new novel; go with me through these dark lanes and blind courts, into the damp cellars, unfurnished garrets, where poverty, vice and crime are crowded together, layer upon layer, where breeds the corruption that pervades our whole atmosphere. Here, my friends, is a volume that may excite you; here is a work that you may read. Forget your luxury, forget your luxurious ease, blush for your repinings sentimental whimperings, your vapors and indigestion, and remember that you are men, and that it is your business to make this earth a paradise.

Amusing cure for Drunkenness.—The late Earl of Pembroke, who had many good qualities, but always persisted inflexibly in his own opinion, which, as well as his conduct, was often very singular, thought of an expedient to prevent the exhortations and importanities of those about him .- This was to feign himself deaf; and under pretence of hearing very imperfectly, he would always form his answer by what he desired to have said. Among other servants was one who had lived with him from a child, and served him with great fidelity and affection, till at length he became his coachman. The man by degrees got a habit of drinking, for which his lady had often desired that he might be dismissed. My lord always answered, "Yes, indeed, John is an excellent servant." "I say," replied the lady, "he is continually drunk, and I desired that he might be turned off." "Aye," said his lordship, "he has lived with mo from a child, and as you say a trifle should not part us." John, however, one evening, as he was driving from Kingston, overturned his lady in Hyde Park; she was not much hurt, but when she came home, she began to rally at the Earl. "Here," says she, "is that beast of a John, so drunk that he can hardly stand; he has overturned the coach, and if he is not discharged, may break our necks." "Aye," says my lord, "is poor John sick? Alas, I am sorry for him." "I am complaining," said my lady, "that he is drunk, and overturned me." "Aye," answered his lordship, "to be sure he has behaved very well, and shall have proper advice." My lady finding it hopeless to remonstrate, went away in a pet; and my lord having ordered John into his presence, addressed him very cooly in these words: "John, you know I have a regard for you, and as long as you behave well, you shall be taken care of in my family; my lady tells me you are taken ill, and indeeed I see that you can hardly stand; go to bed and I will take care that you have proper advice."

John, being thus dismissed, was taken to bed, where, by his lordship's order, a large blister was put upon his head, another between his shoulders, and sixteen ounces of blood taken from his arm. John found himself next morning in a woful plight, and was soon acquainted with the whole process, and the reason upon which it was commenced. He had no remedy, however, but to submit; for he would rather have incurred as many more blisters, than loose his place. My lord sent very formally twice a day to know how he was, and frequently congratulated my lady upon John's recovery, whom he directed to be fed only with water gruel, and to have no company but an old nurse. In about a week, John having constantly sent word that he was well, my lord thought fit to understand the messenger, and said, he was extremely glad that the fever had left him, and desired to see him. When John came in, "Well John," said he, "I hope this is about over." "Ah, my lord," said John, "I humbly ask your lordship's pardon. I promise never to commit the same fault again." "Ay, ay," said my lord, "nobody can prevent sickness, and if you should be sick again, John, I shall see to it, though perhaps you should not complain; and I promise you shall always have the same advice, and the same attendance that you have had now." "God bless your lordship," says John, "I hope there will be no need." "So do I, too," says his lordship; "but as long as you do your duty towards me, never fear, I shall do mine towards vou."

INDUSTRY .- Love labor; for if thou dost not want it for food, thou mayst for physic. It is wholesome for thy body, and good for thy mind. It prevents the fruits of idleness, which many times comes of nothing to do, and lead too many to do what is worse than nothing.

A garden, an elaboratory, a workhouse, improvements, and breeding, are pleasant and profitable diversions to the idle and ingenious; for here they miss ill company, and converse with nature and art; whose varieties are equally grateful and instructing, and preserve a good constitution of body and mind.

MAXIMS.

TEMPERANCE.—To this a spare diet contributes much. Eat therefore to live, and do not live to cat. That is like a man, but this below a beast.

Have wholesome, but not eastly food: and be rather cleanly than dainty in ordering it.

The receipts of cookery are swelled to a volume, but a good stomach excels them all: to which nothing contributes more than industry and temperance.

If thou rise with an appetite, thou art sure never to sit down without one.

The most common things are the most useful; which shows both the wisdom and goodness of the great Lord of the family of the world.

What, therefore, he has made rare, do not use too commonly; least thou shouldst invert the use and order of things, become wanton and voluptuous, and thy blessings prove a curse.

Neither urge another to that thou wouldst be unwilling to do thyself: nor do thyself what looks to thee unseemly and intemperate in another.

All execss is ill; but drunkenness is of the worst sort. It spoils health, dismounts the mind, and unmans men. It reveals secrets, is quarrelsome, laseivious, impudent, dangerous, and mad. In fine, he that is drunk is not a man; because he is so long void of reason, that distinguishes a man from a beast.

APPAREL.—Excess in apparel is another costly folly. The very trimming of the vain world would elothe all the naked one.

Choose thy clothes by thine own eyes, not another's. The more plain and simple they are, the better; neither unshapely nor fantastical; for use and decency, and not for pride.

If thou art clean and warm, it is sufficient, for more doth but rob the poor, and please the wanton.

AVARICE.—Covetousness is the greatest of monsters, as well as the root of all evil. I have once seen the man who died to save charges! "What! give ten shillings to a doctor, and have an apothecary's bill besides, that may come to I know not what!" No, not he: valuing life less than twenty shillings. But indeed such a man could not well set too low a price upon himself: who, though he lived up to the chin in bags, had rather die, than find in his heart to open one of them, to help to save his life.

How vilely he has lost himself, that becomes a slave to his servant and exalts him to the dignity of his Maker! Gold is the God, the wife, the friend, of the money-monger of the world.

REPARATION.—If thou hast done an injury to another, rather own it than defend it. One way thou gainest forgiveness; the other, thou doublest the wrong and reckoning.

RULES OF CONVERSATION.—Avoid company, where it is not profitable or necessary: and on these oceasions, speak little, and last.

Silence is wisdom where speaking is folly, and always safe. Some are so foolish, as to interrupt and anticipate those that speak, instead of hearing and thinking before they answer; which is uncivil, as well as silly.

TEMPER.—Nothing does reason more right, than the coolness of those that offer it, for truth often suffers more by the heat of its defenders, than from the arguments of its opposers.

JUSTICE.—Believe nothing against another, but upon good authority: nor report what may hurt another, unless it be a greater hurt to others to conceal it.

BEARING.—A man in business must put up with many affronts, if he loves his own quiet.

We must not pretend to see all that we see, if we would be easy.

It were endless to dispute upon everything that is disputable.

A vindictive temper is not only uneasy to others, but to them that have it.

A COUNTRY LIFE.—The country life is to be preferred, for there we see the works of God; but in cities, little else but the works of men: and the one makes a better subject for our contemplation than the other.

The country is both the philosopher's garden and library, in which he reads and contemplates the power, wisdom, and goodness of God.

INDUSTRY.—Industry is certainly very commendable and supplies the want of parts.

Never give out while there is a hope; but hope not beyond reason; for that shows more desire than judgment.

RESPECT.—Never esteem any man, or thyself, the more for money; nor think the meaner of thyself, or another, for want of it: virtue being the just reason of respecting, and the want of it of slighting any one.

A man, like a watch, is to be valued for his goings.

He that prefers him upon other accounts, bows to an idol.

TRICK.—Nothing needs a trick, but a trick; sincerity loathes one.

We must take care to do things rightly; for a just sentence may be unjustly executed.

Circumstances give great light to true judgment, when weighed.

Passion.—Passion is a sort of fever in the mind, which ever leaves us weaker than it found us.

But, being intermitting, to be sure it is eurable with eare. It, more than anything, deprives us of the use of our judgment; for it raises a dust very hard to see through.

IRRITATION.—What is the difference between the man who is irritated, and the man who has irritated him; except that the last did wrong first?
